Glantz: Angolan Adventures

News Feature by Peter Kunigk

Dr. Michael Glantz, assistant professor of government and law, spoke at length about his Portuguese experiences at the Stephen Crane Society meeting Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Glantz's display of his yarn-telling virtually included background on the formation, personal experience and a slide presentation in what was essentially an anecdotal record into the evolving and ever-changing Glidanian political saga.

"Glantz-watchers" on campus were especially interested in the grants of his journey. As a student at the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Political Science in 1962, he lived in the land of the legendary Guerilla politician

The council of the leader of an ongoing rebellion in Angola. According to a previous article in the Daily Pennsylvanian, Glantz was the country's most colorful stamps, the prospect of a master's thesis followed from this gliding on paper. However, finding it too easy to be the potential scholar that he was, he decided to investigate. Thus, he traveled to Salazar, the Prime Minister of Portugal to inform him of the country's public relations firm, who also had the idea. The character of Angola's economy was doing a terrible job. He further queried: Are you using NATO weapons to beat the Angolan insurgents? Glantz described this question as rather "tautless and blunt." Notwithstanding this, he was invited to an expensive travel tour of Angola and Portugal.

Voter Information

If you want to vote, you'd better act now. During the University of Pennsylvania's runoff elections, the slate of candidates has already been decided. The results are as follows:

Previous registration in your home state does not preclude registration here in Easton. Just go to the courthouse and explain your situation. Also, students receiving out-of-state scholarships should check with the state issuing the money to see if you become a Pennsylvania resident. Similarly, students may have state loans and scholarships here. However, they should not be required to register from the state. Therefore, official registration will not affect your state status. To avoid a registration record it has not affected your registration on the ledger. For those wishing to vote in your home state, the following is a summary of absentee ballots rules for the states most represented in the student body:

New Organization Budget Policies Explained By Bradbury At Meeting

The new organizations budget policy was announced by Dr. Bradbury, 9A chairman of the student organization committee at the budget allocations meeting held on October 4. The policy holds for all clubs and organizations, and is as follows:

All check request forms and deposit slips will be obtained through the chairman of the student organizations committee of finances and then submitted to Dean Shushter, since all checks and deposit slips will be submitted to the student organization committee of finances. For example, a slip for $100 will be submitted to the student organization committee of finances for authorization, and the money will be used for an authorized expenditure, whether any check or check $100 is countersigned by the chairman of the student organizations committee.

For "The Lafayette," however, the printing bill for each issue does not have to be countersigned. Also, any bills of the student government over $100 must be signed by the vice-president, the treasurer, or the committee chairman.

If all of those check things out, Dean Shushter will send the bill directly to the treasurer's office, where the request will be processed, and recorded in a special ledger. All bills must also be countersigned. The treasurer and will be recorded in the ledger.

No bill that wishes to know about their financial status must go to the organizational committee, which will send each club and organization a monthly statement of the account.

"Budget Required for organization is required "to submit a budget. The basic purpose of this budget is to serve as a request for funding from the student government. It should be remembered that the allocation received by the student government is limited and is not a blank check to fund any and every project that may arise. Also, student government has to be responsible to the needs of the entire campus, not just a select group.

In order to develop a budget, an organization should first develop a program for the year. The program should be as definite as possible. If any income is anticipated, the sources and estimated amounts should be listed.

The expenses will of course, depend upon the program anticipated. The needs to implement each program should be listed and a cost-assigned to each item required. Estimates of costs should be based on the best sources available. Estimates based on past experience, present conditions, etc. are often the only possible, and estimates of costs do determine is usually helpful in judging the reasonableness of the request.

Paddling a Budget

There may be a desire to list of everything that will be needed in order to meet the budget. However, just as if a cut occurs, in many cases, this padding is noted during one of the budgetary reviews and may result in the rejection of the entire budget.

If the paddling goes undetected and the full allocation is made, the review of expenses should reflect the need for a request should be relevant to the overstated expenditures and have results to future allocations. In addition, any overfunding of one Continued on page six
